DEDICATION IN MEMORIAM

Rapport

THOMAS J. ADDLEMAN

Love's anticipations rise
Stretching to the holy skies;
The starkling trees root not forlorn--
Their boughs in dawn of God reborn.
Every person and each tree
By gracious Might know entity;
Hate crossed a tree on Jesus' back,
The tree felt blood but knew no lack,
For the cries of Christ intensified
The pangs of love for which He died!

To Him my spirit I bend low
For that which He did not let go;
My constant prayer This Sacred Flower,
In His splendor, us empower.

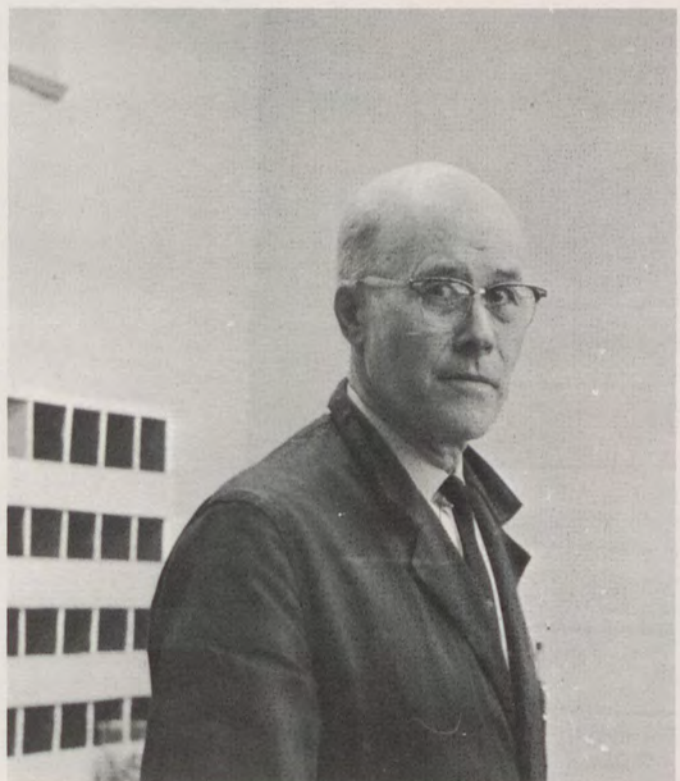

And so, beloved, my days start
Arms outstretched to you dear heart;
You give my being fulness of
Life to live--for you--for love.
If I had not your love close by,
My soul would go; my heart would die.
Dearest one in the world to me,
We rapport like God and tree--
Vicariously, soul to soul--
Your love thru Him but keeps me whole!

--by Mrs. Thomas J. Addleman

January 24, 1966
24th Wedding Anniversary

Our friend is gone, Pop is dead.
Down from Pennsylvania and into these hills
To this little place. They came,
Mama and him.
They settled and grew, Pop and Mama to a thousand boys.
He grew, and we grew so very much more.
And Pop died, as we shall die; but Pop lived.
So, Pop, rest in these hills and love these hills
As these hills have loved you,
As these hills love you.

ADVERTISEMENTS

We are living in what are perhaps the most challenging times that mankind has ever faced. There are questions, doubts, and fears always present in our minds. Yet it is the perplexity of life itself that has made man respond to and overcome the obstacles which have confronted him.

Most successful businessmen tell us that their performance is at its best when they are most busy; that some of their best decisions were made while they were under pressure. And so it is under these conditions that we move out into the world.

However, our thoughts should not be of the obligations we have but rather of the opportunities that await us - perhaps even the opportunity to find peace.

In the near future we will take our place in the society of the world. No longer will we sit in a classroom and discuss the events of the day; rather we will be a part of those who make the events of the day.

Perhaps true peace will not come on our time, but if our generation can do even one thing to promote better understanding and bring mankind closer together, then the lives God has granted us will not have been in vain.
