an open door

doors . . . an endless arrangement of doors . . . forever reaching out before us . . . one continually leading to another . . . each a beginning and yet—an end . . . leaving the known for an unknown . . . but a hopeful unknown . . . starting our endless journey . . . finding ourselves very much alone . . . and very much with others . . . but always another door leading us on . . .

reality

bravely reaching to grasp that door . . . that obstacle we each must overcome . . . a struggle . . . long and tiresome . . . almost overpowering . . . we must strive to open that door . . . and face without fear the other side . . . leaving the safety of what is known but already over, for what is still a mystery and yet to come . . . groping into the darkness with the hope that the future will be worth striving for . . . reaching out with the hope of finding truth . . . being myself . . . having to please no one but myself.

Reflection

During the summer of 1980, I spent a week at the University of Wisconsin-Madison. I was a student at the time, and I was very interested in the study of the environment. I was particularly interested in the study of the water resources of the state. I was very fortunate to have the opportunity to work with some of the leading experts in the field. I was able to learn a great deal about the water resources of the state, and I was able to see the impact of human activities on the environment. I was very impressed by the dedication and hard work of the people who were working to protect the environment. I was also very impressed by the beauty of the state. I was able to see the state from a different perspective, and I was able to appreciate the natural resources that we have. I was very grateful for the opportunity to spend time at the University of Wisconsin-Madison, and I was very grateful for the people who made my stay so enjoyable. # reflections having made it through one door . . . we find time to relax before the next struggle . . . friends . . . love and hate . . . each person . . . each happy, giving hour . . . each quiet, somber second . . . a vital part of our lives . . . all gentle nudges reminding us, we must move on and face the rest of whatever else is out there . . . we have already opened many doors . . . but so many are left to be opened . . . talking . . . long hours . . . to a friend or maybe something more than just a friend . . . laughing at how crazy the world looks . . . laughing . . . crying . . . loving . . . hating . . . all part of the once unknown and soon, the past.

out through the door . . . we find peace . . . a tranquility equal to nothing else on this earth . . . the foothills . . . the beauty of pine and of flowers
. . . the quiet splendor of the breeze blowing through pine needles . . . the calm serenity echoing through the trees . . .
a walk through nature . . .
through the quiet majesty of his wonderful creation . . . a place for love . . . a place for peace . . . a place for thoughts
. . . a place to relieve the ten-sest emotion . . . to calm the tightest nerves . . . to relax from the stress and anxiety of our lives . . .

tomorrow

and now as we draw closer to the end . . . we feel the elation of finality . . . but in reality it is just another beginning . . . the start of another end . . . as we walk hand in hand toward our destiny . . . our lives have been shaped by what we have felt . . . what we have been . . . what we have hoped to be . . . it will be the last time we walk through these doors . . . but it will be the basis we shall stand on for the rest of our lives . . . when we are faced with with bigger and more frightening challenges.

in dedication

for his leadership as director of physical education, dean of men and dean of students . . . for his role as husband, father, church member, citizen, athlete and outdoorsman . . . for his wit, his kindness, his gentlemanly ways . . . the sophomore class dedicates the cherokee phoenix to dean h. kimsey wood.

dr. j. r. burgess, jr.

Dr. Burgess,
I have enjoyed my years at Reinhardt. You

more than I can ever say.
Julia

I, Too

I, too, sing America.

I am the darker brother.
They send me to eat in the kitchen
When company comes,
But I laugh,
And eat well,
And grow strong.

Tomorrow,
I'll sit at the table
When company comes.
Nobody'll dare
Say to me,
"Eat in the kitchen,"
Then.

Besides,
They'll see how beautiful I am
And be ashamed--

I, too, am America.

Reinhardt College

Waleska, Georgia 30183

J. R. BURGESS, JR.
PRESIDENT

To The Members of the Class of 1972:

What can I say that will make you feel one bit better, be one whit finer, or have a happier remembrance of Reinhardt College?

I can say that I think some of you are pretty wonderful people, and I could probably say that about each one if I knew you well enough. The longer I live the more astonished I am at how well some people turn out.

I can admonish you to believe in the power of Goodness in a world that contains a shocking amount of evil. If you really believe in Goodness and admire it in others, you will become good and perhaps add greatness to goodness.

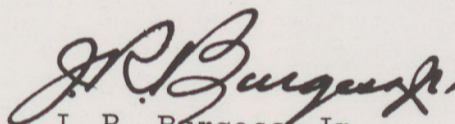

And now for a happier remembrance of your life at Reinhardt! All of your days will be remembered with more happiness if your remaining days are happy ones. This can be achieved by ordering your own life so that you have a good feeling about what you have done instead of a guilty feeling about what you did or failed to do. There is no satisfaction like that which comes from setting your own goals and achieving them. Your life will be happier, too if you are concerned about the happiness of others.

Thank goodness there is something in our nature that causes us to forget the unpleasant things and to remember the pleasant things in life.

The winter "blues" and springtime "blahs" will pass away and someday you will be wondering why the younger generation cannot quit complaining and rebelling and be happy like you were when you were in college. College days are happy days — at least they should be, and usually are. And there are many more happy days in the years ahead.

Best wishes.

Sincerely yours,

J. R. Burgess, Jr.

JRB/lb

as i come to the last page of the cherokee phoenix, i realize the journal of life at reinhardt for 1971-72 is almost finished . . . . closing doors
can be sad . . . . i must say good bye to friends . . . to my staff . . . to linda byers . . . but as i go on to open new doors in life, the happier memories of my two years at reinhardt will go with me . . . . i hope that this annual will help you preserve the good times of 1971-72 at reinhardt college . . . .
