WE'VE ONLY JUST BEGUN TO LIVE

Reinhardt College is a beginning. The freshmen are beginning their college experience which includes many adjustments. Sophomores are also starting college, for Reinhardt is a junior college. The new basketball team will make its debut with the new eagle mascot displayed proudly. Reinhardt is also preparing for the coming centennial year which in itself is a beginning. Indeed, Reinhardt abounds with new beginnings this year.

We have a tradition at Reinhardt of an interesting and high quality yearbook. I wish to thank and congratulate all who have made this 1983 Cherokee Phoenix a reality, for the yearbook is a product of hard work and real commitment. I always look forward with keen anticipation to seeing how you seek to capture in pictures and words the many meaningful events of the past year.

May Christ's joy be yours always!

GLIMPSES

A GLIMPSE AT OUR BEGINNING

The year 1883 dawned as a milestone for Reinhardt College. One hundred years before this institution had its beginning as the dream of two Methodist laymen, John J.A. Sharp and Captain A.M. Reinhardt. The two wished to found a school where the young people of Civil War ravaged North Georgia could receive an education.

In 1883 Georgia was still feeling the effects of defeat in that conflict. In Cherokee County modern education as we know it did not then exist. There was no school where the sons and daughters of those Reconstruction Era families could attend to acquire even the most basic educational skills.

Sharp and Reinhardt's vision to further the education of the residents of north Georgia was a deep and abiding one.

First Automobile on campus, 1906

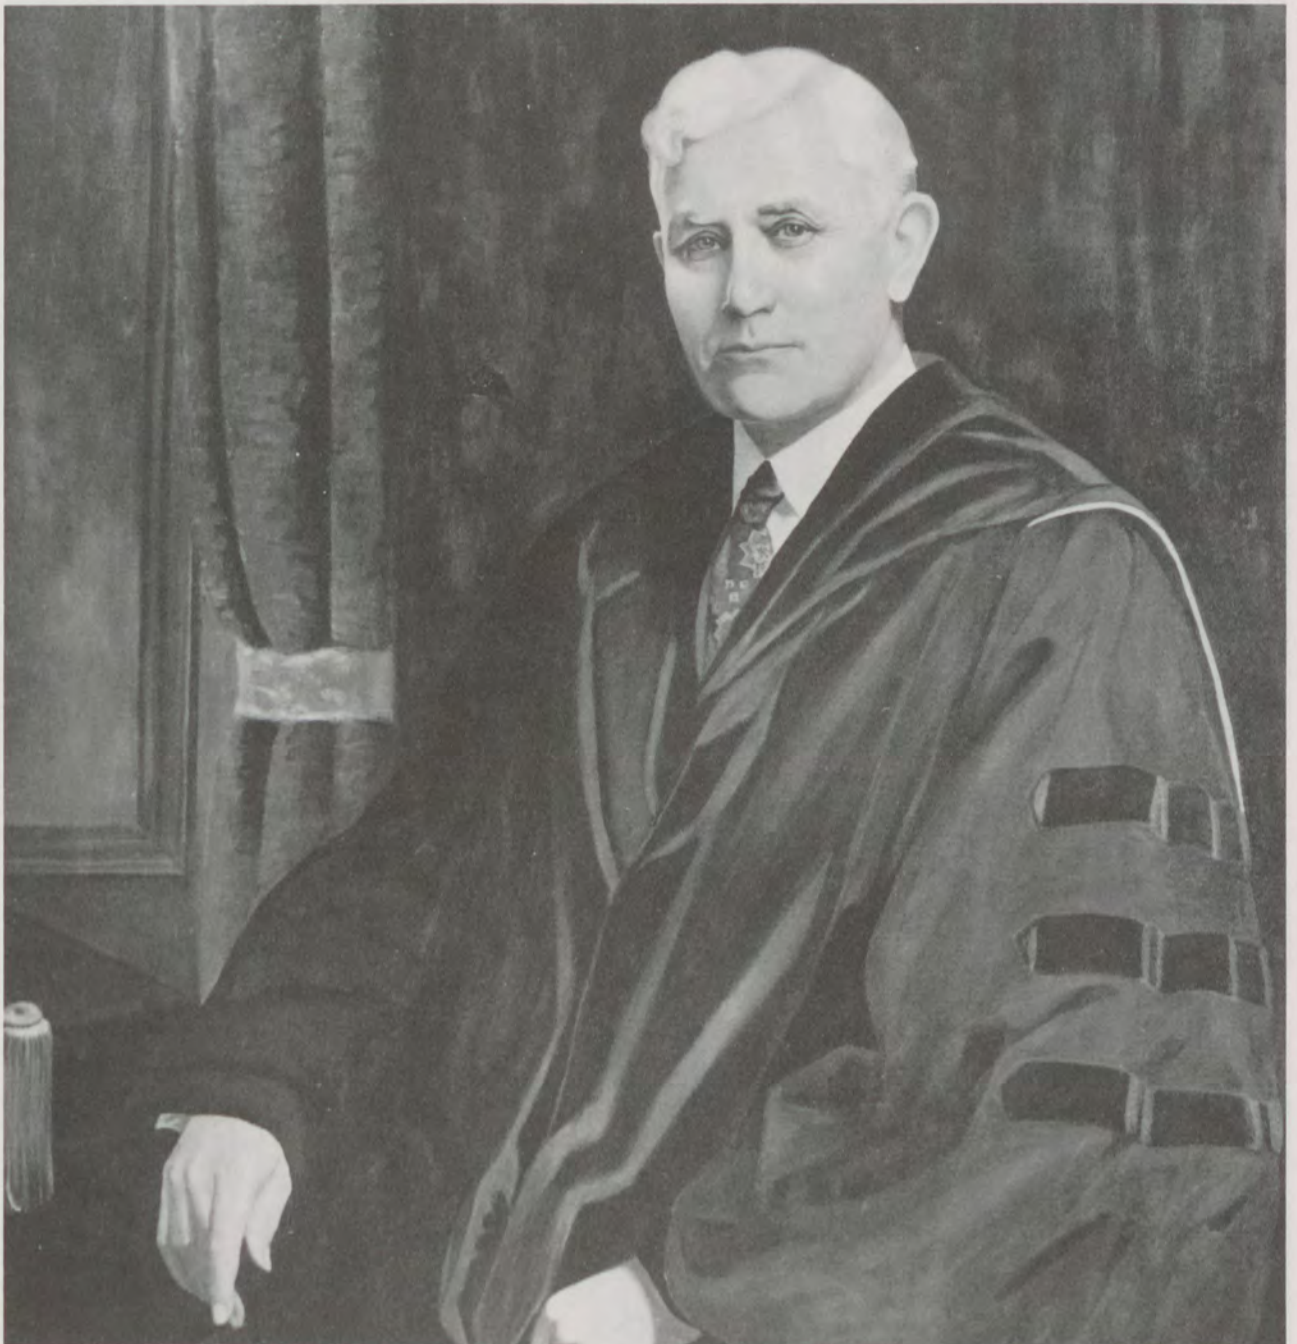

The two approached the North Georgia Conference of the United Methodist Church with their plan. Conference leaders, then meeting in Dalton, favored the proposal and agreed to provide a "strong preacher and teacher" to take charge of the school.

Finally in January 1884 the school opened with its single instructor and 12 students of varying ages and educational levels. Reinhardt faced a long period of struggle, growth and evolution. In those early years it was simply a school - providing the basic skills deemed necessary for the young people of that day. It was yet to become a modern institution of higher learning.

Over the years with the growth of the public education system in Georgia and the economic recovery of the state,

Dr. Samuel C. Dobbs

Reinhardt began to evolve. The elementary school was phased out, and soon a high school was added. Eventually, in the 1920s, a second year of post-secondary instruction to make Reinhardt a full fledged co-educational junior college was begun. It is today one of the oldest such institutions in the United States.

By 1925 Reinhardt was truly a college. It was experiencing growth, but there were difficult times ahead. The pressures presented by the Great Depression of the 1930s and World War II made the prospects for future growth dim for the small Methodist college.

When Dr. James Rowland Burgess arrived on the Reinhardt College campus to assume the presidency in 1944, the campus was a collection of aging dilapidated buildings with broken windows. There were ten students enrolled in the freshman class and six teachers being paid $110 a month.

Administration building

In the ensuing 29 years he served as president, the college once more began to prosper. In 1949 a major campus improvement project was undertaken which included the construction of a modern Administration-Classroom building. In the 1950s the campus itself was renovated and two new dorms were constructed. The last high school students in Reinhardt Academy were transferred to the public school system as the enrollment of students in the college once more began to rise.

During the 1960s a modern library and media center was constructed as the college began to expand its degree offerings and its student body.

Since 1973 when Dr. Allen O. Jernigan assumed the presidency, Reinhardt has undergone a period of unprecedented growth. The original main campus with its tiny collection of buildings has since been expanded to include a new president's home, maintenance building, physical educational facility and student center. The College has renovated and restored other structures and put them to new uses. An old dairy barn has become a theatre while a maintenance building and farm implement building have become an art studio and ceramics lab respectively. In addition, the College's old gym has been renovated for use as a student center.

As part of a $1.5 Million Centennial Development Campaign, Reinhardt has plans to add three new structures to the campus: a campus chapel, a food service center and a music building.

Boy's dorm

Reinhardt College has come a long way since its founding 100 years ago in a tiny cabinet shop. The dream of those two Methodist laymen has been and continues to be a reality.

CLOSING

SHARING HORIZONS THAT ARE NEW TO US

WATCHING
THE SIGNS
ALONG THE WAY

TALKING
IT OVER JUST THE TWO OF US

LEARNING
TOGETHER
DAY TO DAY

AND WHEN THE EVENING COMES
WE SMILE

SO MUCH OF LIFE
AHEAD

WE'LL FIND A PLACE WHERE THERE'S ROOM TO GROW
