

On the Road Again, Commuters

Once In A Lifetime

Student life is an important part of college. Whether you're a commuter or live in a dorm there is something for everyone. The students at Reinhardt make up a big process of achieving our goals. Friendships formed in college are also a big part of this period in everyone's life. Many friendships formed here last for a lifetime.

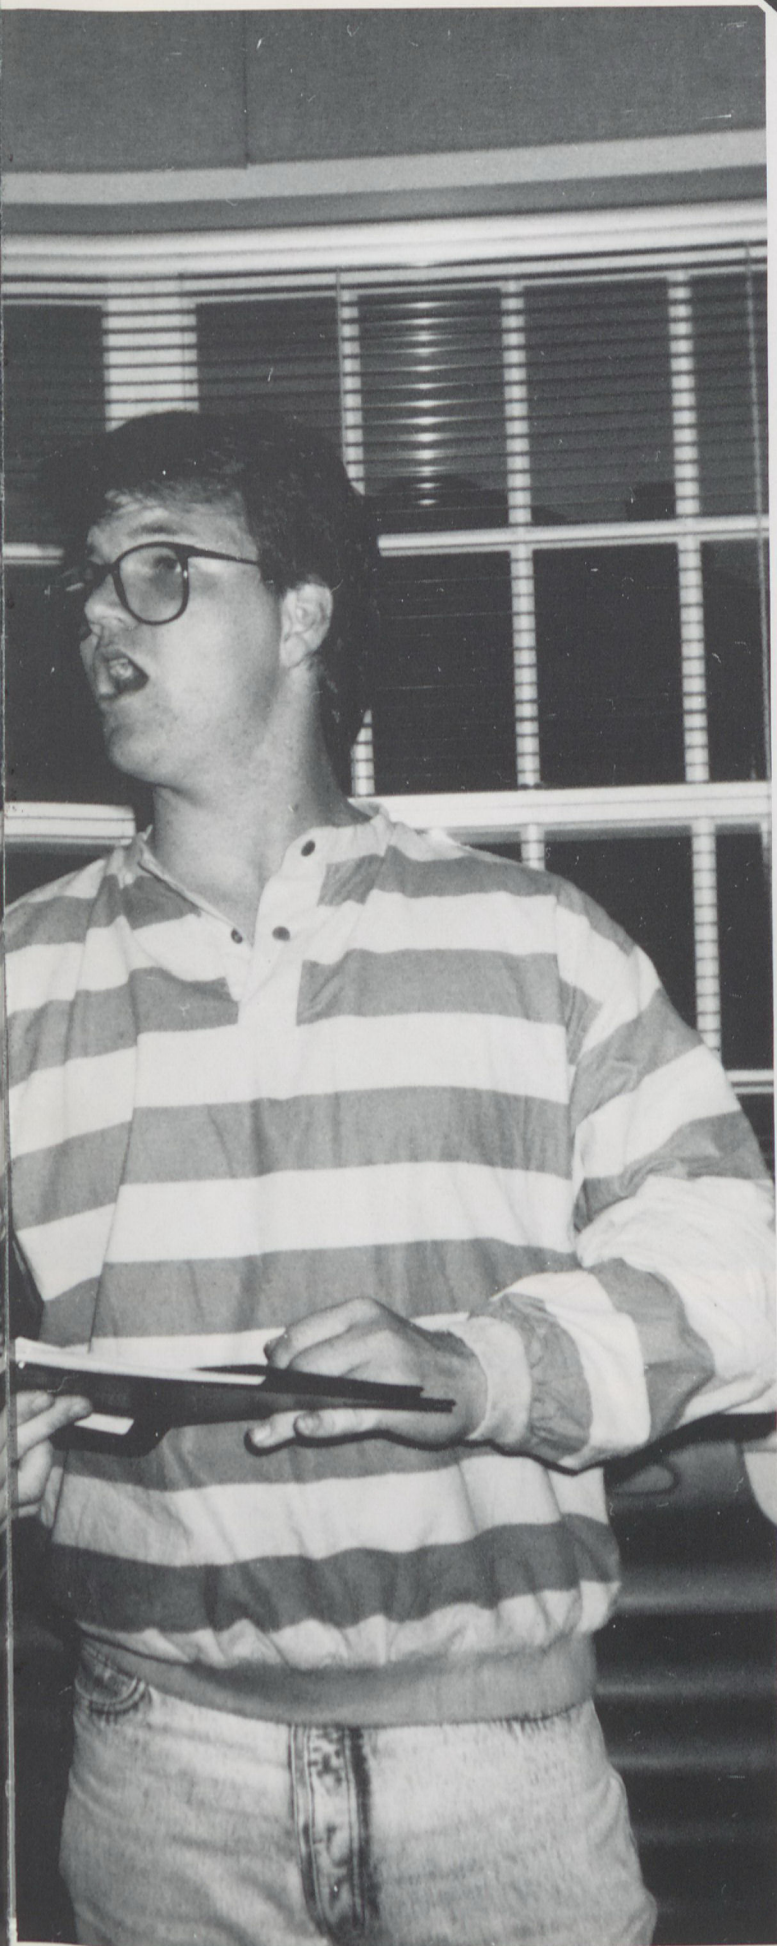

Jennifer McCracken and Jan Childers see things from a whole different angle.

Friends Forever

Dorm life is a different experience than living at home. For some people it's their first taste of freedom. For many maybe too much freedom.

Dorm life is also much different from commuting. You get to be more involved in sports and other organizations on campus. Dorm life is an important part of college experience. It's also a great way to meet new people and grow.

Reinhardt Student Life . . .

College . . . the very word evokes an intense medley of emotions. For some it's a dream come true - freedom from overbearing parents, the luxury to make your own decisions, to come and go as one pleases, a feeling of independence. For others it is a dose of reality - sharing a room the size of a shoebox with an unbearably messy roommate, pay your bills, opening your closet to find it empty because you meant to do that laundry yesterday, and facing that 8:00 a.m. test you meant to study for while you were at Applebee's last night. Students at Reinhardt College face these challenges day in and day out and love every minute of it!

All of the experiences college has to offer can seem somewhat overwhelming at first. There just aren't enough hours in the day to go to all the rush, pledge dances, SGA meetings, PTK dinners, choir rehearsals, Bible studies, basketball games, and tutorials that you have in your schedule. Somehow you will find a way to "just do it" all!

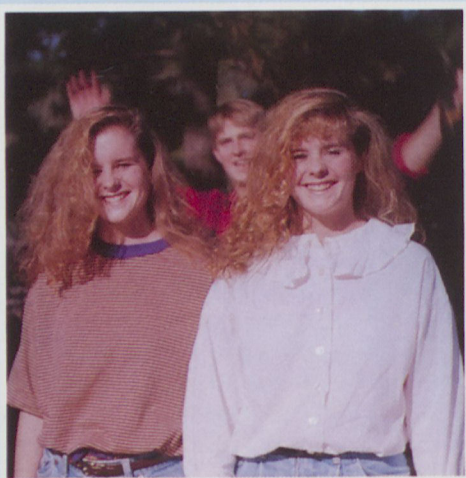

"Super Hal" and "Condom Man".
