P lanning For Change

R.A.s And Student Leaders Plan For Changes

Successful change takes a lot of planning and preparation. This summer student leaders spent four days in Mars Hill, North Carolina setting new policy, working on goals, and having a little fun. Resident's Assistants also had a period of training and retreat before the school year began. They got to know one another and some of the situations they could be faced with as R.A.s.

New Freshmen Prepare For The Change Of A Lifetime

What do you get when you combine 150 freshmen, crazy people in blue shirts, scavenger hunts that don't always work, interesting D.J.'s, long days, and a first taste of Gordy food? A Reinhardt Orientation, of course. Three times during the summer freshmen came and began learning what it means to be a Reinhardt student. Orientation works to prepare students for what can be the biggest change that some people have ever faced. From dealing with living with someone else to figuring out how much to study, freshmen fall quarter can be quite a shock and a most exhilarating experience.

Pious looking — aren't we?

I am NOT a happy camper.

These freshmen share a much needed Coke break.

Future freshmen or future Rockets? You decide.

Move In Day Brings Changes For Everyone

New people, new places, strange faces — these are things that everyone experiences on move in day. The start of your college career brings about vast lifestyle changes for both you and your parents. You are given your first chance at real independence while your parents are faced with letting you go. On move in day parents and students arrange furniture, decorate rooms, and try to make the dorm as “homey” as possible. When it does come time for good-byes, it can be emotional for parents and students.

Gordy Hall becomes home to over 100 girls.

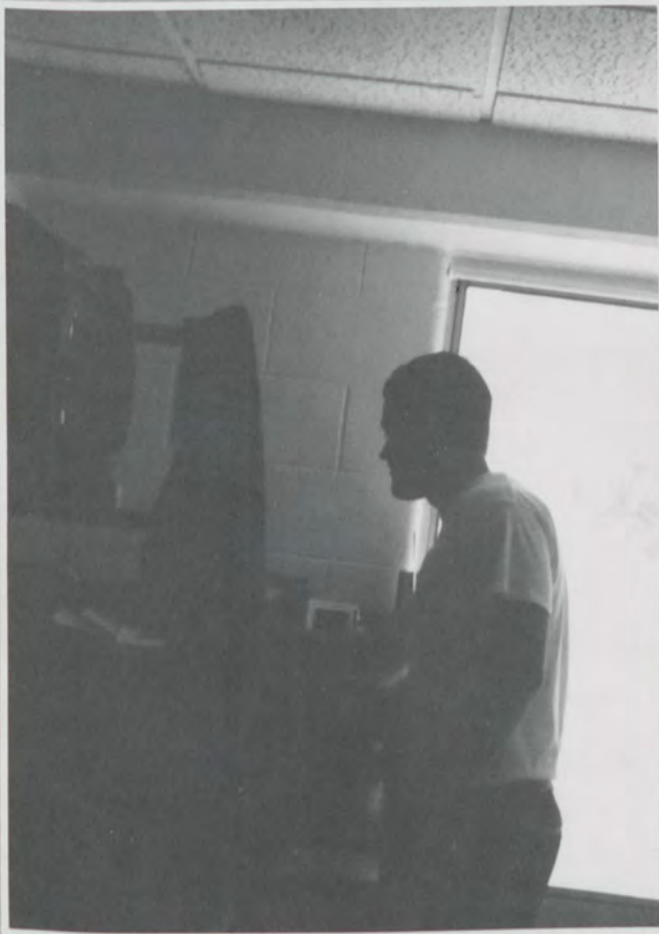

This mother declared that this was the last time she would have to make a bed.

Parents and students check out the amenities of the dorm room.

Everyone lends a hand in moving in.

Placement of personal items is important in small dorm rooms.

Moving in doesn't mean all work and no play.

A Change For The Better

Dorm Life Brings People Together

Living with another person can be quite a trying experience, but it can also lay the foundation for a wonderful friendship. Dorm life gives each person a chance to meet many new people. Often you find yourself with new people with the same interests as you and you become friends for life.

Angie, Jared, and friends relax together after a hard day of classes.

Mark, Dave, and Mark look forward to a beautiful afternoon.

Kate and Chloe are all smiles about their friendship.

Richard gets a new perspective on things.

Students Receive Challenge At Opening Convocation

Opening Convocation marks the official beginning of school each year. For one morning classes are canceled and students and teachers dress for the occasion. This year Mike Bowers, Georgia Attorney General spoke. He challenged students to work hard today because when we become leaders in business and the community we will be making decisions that will change the community, the country, and the world.

Faculty

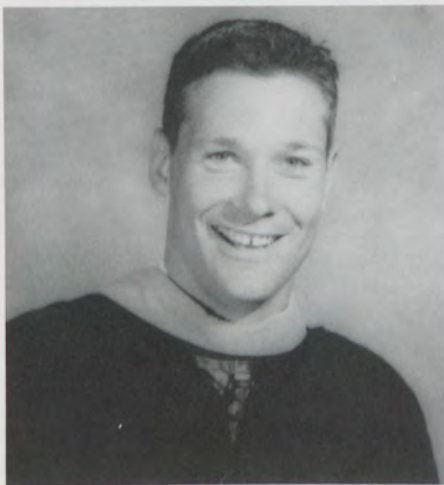

Reinhardt College has always prided itself on its faculty. From past businessmen teaching in the new business school to tenured professors in other departments, the school has much to be proud of. Reinhardt faculty function as a family much like the students. The faculty teach not only history, science, literature, or math, but teach us all about life. They truly work to teach future leaders and change the world of tomorrow.

Hello, Goodbye

Mike Siegal, Assistant to the Vice President of Academic Affairs and Sociology professor, says goodbye this year to attend graduate school at Indiana University. He is well known and loved by students and faculty alike and will be greatly missed.

Steve Fazenbaker says hello this year as our new campus minister. Steve has brought much enthusiasm and big plans to this position. Steve has brought much enthusiasm and big plans to this position. From a retreat at Epworth-by-the-Sea fall quarter to the spring break mission trip to Honduras he has already gotten a great start.

Doug Lindsey has been known for quite a few years as a tough literature and speech professor. He doles out lectures with facts and much life experience. He will only be teaching one class per quarter next year. His presence on campus will be greatly missed.

Reinhardt says hello to Lynn Palazzo, the new director of Student Activities. She has headed up not only the student activities council, but also intramurals, and a new leadership program for freshmen. She has also become the advisor for the Panhellenic Council and helps with all Greek activities.

The girls of Roberts Hall say goodby to Ms Trudy.

Editor's Sign Off

Well here it is. I know you're all glad to see it finally at school. I want to thank Nathan Brandon and Steve Fasnaker for helping me get this thing done. I also want to thank all those people who donated photographs, gave me ideas, and stood around looking goofy for me. I'll never forget those long days and nights at Reinhardt. To everyone there in the past, present, and future, have a good one. Remember, if your not good — then be good at it.

Peace,

Stephanie

I'll never forget — the night the lights went out at Reinhardt, rafting with "the Greeks", Magic, Whaffle House, snow all over campus, playing in the rain, Shaggy and Scooby, the Leao way, the hall dance, sorority secrets, parties in the woods (I'll never tell where), midnight runs to Kroger (in Cumming), not driving (thanks Rob), being tackled (repeatedly), coffee house, the first SAC meeting, the last SAC meeting, Gordy food, teachers who know, my car being stuck in ... mud — snow — my front yard, house parties in Arrowhead, the 5 hours to Jesup, the 45 minutes to Cumming, Baskin Robins, Chinese food, Animae at 6:00am, big dog, Tibbles, the butt cave, Egyptian rat screw, Swells, Killa, Wesal, Ben's Trippin, and to Annon and Rob for making the past year something that I'll never forget (or probably ever correctly remember).
